THE HAND OF WELCOME!

Our city already feels the impetus of the approaching Centennial celebration in the advent of large numbers of visitors.

From this time on to the culmination of the glorious event there will be daily accessions of thousands to our population, coming from all quarters of the country.

The growth of New York during the hun dred years since Washington here assumed the reins of government of an infant Repub-He, is the pride of Americans everywhere, and likewise the people of the metropolis glory in the energy, thrift and progress of our fellow-citizens in every section of our beloved land.

Yes, let the hundred thousands come. Here's New York's hand of welcome to you all. May the days of your sojourn be packed with pleasure and crowned with sentiments of patriotism, predominant and intense.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

Sir Julian Pauncepore, the new British Minister, in his interview with THE EVENING World reporter, published yesterday, makes wery pleasant allusion to the charming qualities of American women.

Such an expression will make the British diplomat many friends in his new field of labor, for if there is any one feature of our country of which Americans are proud it is of our bright, agreeable, handsome and true was yesterday declared a "favorite son" of Like all victors in a political fight he emerges from the struggle badly battered and with his record thoroughly ventilated. Now, a word of advice to John.

Don't glory too much in your victory, or you may get into more serious trouble. Be moderate and restrain your wild habits. It would be greatly to your credit if you would quit causing tears to flow and confine yourself purely to promoting good cheer.

" A GOOD RULE WORKS BOTH WAYS"

With refreshing coolness the Republican Senators at Albany intimate that if the Democratic Senators will behave themselves the Rapid Transit Bill may be passed.

That's good as far as it goes. But why not "behave" all around the board, Republicaus and Democrats alike?

Why not stop wrangling like children at a kindergarten, and get down to the hard pan of the on blic's business?

THE MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Mayor GRANT has issued a proclamation sarnestly urging profuse decorations of dwellings with the flag of the Union during the Centennial celebration. The people of the city were already alive to the importance of this feature, but the patriotic words of the Mayor will tend to accelerate the movement.

Let everybody show the American colors. They are the greatest on earth.

LILLIE POST STEPS OFF, TOO.

ANOTHER STAR MARRIED FROM THE COMIC OPERA STAGE.

Manager Will Morton Is the Happy Man, and the Wedding Happened Last Night-Miss Post Will Not Entirely Retire from the Stage, but She Will Not Sing as Much as She Has Been Wont To.

Exactly in what way a vigorous and protracted siege of comic-opera singing fits a woman for domestic joys has never been thoroughly explained. The number of men who ought to know, however, is forever increasing. latest addition to the ranks is Will H. Morton. the popular young manager of Chicago's Columbia Theatre, well known and liked among metropolitan Thespians, who has just wedded the fascinating Miss Lillie Post.

Gossip assigned Miss Lillian Russell to Mr. Morton some time ago, and gossip was not as wrong as she generally is. She at last got the Christian name of the bride correct, if she erred with the surname.

Miss Post is well known in this city. She was very popular at the Casino some time ago, and among the single-eyeglassed, cane-nourished constituency made a great hit. She sang in "The Beggar Student" and in "Prince Me-

"The Beggar Student" and in "Prince Methusalem," when Col. John A. McCaull reigned at the Casino. She was for a long time a member of Col. McCauli's company.

The wedding took place last night in Chicago. It was a reigious wedding. The services of the Rev. B. T. Fleetwood were utilized, and the union had nothing suggestive of comic opera about it. Mrs. Hunt, a sister of Miss Lillie Post, was present, and Mr. Morton secured a friend to see him through the trying.

Only the romance-lovers will be disappointed to know that Miss Posthas been married before. But she har. Theatrical people would be very astonis ed if she hadn't.

Mrs. Morton will not positively retire from the stage, though her husband declares that she will not make any very long engagements, just as though the husband of a comic-opera singer had anything to say in the matter.

It is understood that Dave Henderson, of the Chicago Opera-House, is negotiating with Miss Post-Morton (the two names, by the bye, go very badly in combination; they have an autopsy-like sound to appear in his Summer production of "Sinbad the Sailor.

Mr. Morton wants domesticity, however. But there are several months between now and Summer.

GLANCES AT THE SLATE. Gilroy's, Glegerich's and Kenting's Name Believed to Be There.

The slate is being made, and next week it will e known who are the choice of Mayor Grant for the important offices within his gift.

Thousands of applications and recommendaions have been received and carefully entered in a book kept for that purpose by the Mayor's confidential clerk, D. J. O'Farrell. This book is annotated showing who is backing the several is amotated showing who is backing the several candidates, and if it were open to public view it would reveal some funny facts.

While the Mayor may have determined in his own mind whom he will appoint, but few are positively known to those not in the immediate confines of the inner circle.

It can be stated with almost absolute confidence, however, that Under-Sheriff Thomas F. Gilroy will be the man selected to fight with Commissioner of Public Works Smith for the control of the Department now ruled by him.

This probable appointment was exclusively announced in The Evening World several months ago

Two other names which are said to have been written on the Mayor's slate with a graver not to be effaced are those of Leonari A. Giezerich, now internal Evenine Collector, and Warden James P. Keating, of Ladlow Street Jail, These men will be Excise Commissioners.

AU REVOIR, SIR JULIAN.

Sir Julian has subscribed to a "clipping bursan, which shows how rapidly he is getting acclimated. With a bean like the new Minister, and Mr. Edwards, whose name with all who know him is a synonym for antiability, it will become a "fad in Washington society to be gracious and modest.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

THE EVENING WORLD offers a gold double eagle for the best love-letter containing a proposition o natrimony addressed to the Typical American Girl, For convenience this typical young lady might be called " Miss Columbia." should contain more than two hundred words. Competitore may write over a nom de plume () they so desire. Ella Whreter Wilcox has kindly agreed to act as judge in the matter and award

Right to the Point.

Dear Miss Columbia: It can't be a recret to you that I love you with my whole heart. You wouldn't be a woman if you had not guessed it. So I will not waste time in coming to the point. I love you. That says all. Will you take me for your life companion?

Awaiting the Great Answer.

Dear Miss Calumbia If you love me as I do you, then by a speedy man I shall receive a "Yes" that will be the the most elequent word my ears have ever heard. I shall hardly sleep till I read that blessed—Yes. Horace.

Is There Any Love?

Homance is said to be a thing of the past. To many it exists only in novels or upon the stage in the modern society plays. Tell some people you are in love and they will advise you to take medicine for your liver or laugh at the idea of such a thing existing in the present generation. In the days of old, when knights were won't to perform valorous deeds for their "fayre ladyes," they were termed heroes. Now they are called uliots. Consequently any declaration of love to one of your practical ideas I imagine would call only a directain smile to your lips. Nevertheless the feeling which I hear for you, call it diseased imagination or disordered liver, impelsented inagination or disordered liver, impelsented in a skyour land in marriage, with the assurance that your future keeping and welfare if intrincted to my care will of itself command your respect if not a more tender feeling.

PESSIMIST. such a thing existing in the present generation Truly, a Sad Case.

Could you but gaze upon the trembling wreck this conclusion? I pray not. If right, may I formed is akin to love. You may, perhaps, wonder why I have not called upon you of late. It is not that your father has, either accidently or intentionally, invested at least 40 cents in a building that would be clear at half the price, nor did he wither up the tender land of my affection by arcastically asking me on the occasion of my lat visit, to wait a few minutes longer and see the ne-arined postman, who, an account of his physical peculiarity, was compelled to deliver letters with his teeth. Not Sarcasin and toothless buildings have no terrors for me; but it was to try and stifle my growing affection, which I fell must be hopeisse, that I have absented myself from vour side. In vain, Your face protrudes on my memory as prominently as a quill of tobacco on a powly willewashed wall. I love you so much that i can tent. But I make it up in drink. My wonder why I have not called upon you of late. It is not that your father has, either accidently or intentionally, invested at least 40 cents in a buildog that would be lear at half the price, nor did he wither up the tender bad of my affection by sareastically ashing me on the occasion of my lat visit, to wait a few minutes longer and see the no-armed postman, who, we account of his physical peculiarity, was comeeled to deliver letters with his teeth. No! Sarcasin and toothless buildogs have no terrors for met but it was to try and stifle my growing affection, which I felt must be hopeless, that I have absented myself from vorusice. In vair. That you're the subject of my admiration. But it is not without trendation. That I come and acknowledge my situation, If you're willing to take my name and station And go be fore a small congregation. We'll endeavor to avoid all osteriation, but be united with due acceleration. We'll embeaver to avoid all estentation, and be united with due acceleration, it might cause the old folks exasperation, When they hear of all this osculation. That we've emboyed during our diritation. But having a good cause for sustentation, I was only the face of a separation. It was only the face of a separation. That kept me from giving them information of my complete and entire fascination. Now, dear, without further expostulation, I want your answer to my declaration. If it's in accordance with my expectation, it will be much to my gratification. If it is not favorable to my anticipation, I shall bring my life to a speedy termination. I shall bring my life to a speedy termination. Proving that you're the object of my adoration. Louan.

The world bows to thy queenly courage, Ac. The world bows to thy queenly rule. Your devoted adorer was thrown in a state of innocuous delirium last evening by the expression, depth and variety of meaning in that heavenly smile you favored him with on his departure. The result of the attempt to analyze that ideal emaration, and the favorable construction arrived at, is convincing that you are all the world to me. Life is a blank without you. My faith in your tonumerable estimable characteristics is so great that I am willing to resign all claim to a future Paridise, in view of the one certain to exist, in case I receive an encouraging recognition of my asperation. Believing that with the co-operation of one so gifted with the grandeur of heart and soul, life a path may be, and will be, made to blossom with the fullness of peace, love, joy and eternal bliss.
